The M64 desk lamp is the last evolution of Miguel Milá's award-winning 1964 pendant lamp, which won the Gold Delta Award and became a landmark in Spanish design history, at its inception as a professional discipline.

True to its origins, this version translates the lamp's fundamental elements into a compact tabletop format, featuring a chrome metal structure that highlights its voluptuous, sensuous shade, available in 10 different finishes. It casts a focused cone of light onto the surface while allowing a soft glow to radiate through its filtered upper opening.
